

JAMES WHITCOMB RILEY

ONE OF AMERICA'S GREAT SONG BIRDS.

Has Sung His Last Song but Leaves
Messages of Joyous
Melody.

James Whitcomb Riley fell asleep at his home in Indianapolis, Indiana, on last Saturday, and as long as language survives the world will be vastly richer because this great song bird lived with his message of joyous melody. He delightfully interpreted childhood though the message came from the heart of a bachelor. He gave to the commonplace the glow of heart throbs. He sang hymns of humanity and the nation joins with President Wilson in his dispatch to the poet's brother-in-law:

"May I not express to you my sincere sorrow at the death of James Whitcomb Riley? With his departure a notable figure passes out of the nation's life; a man who imparted joyful pleasure and a thoughtful view of many things that other men would have missed. I am sure I am speaking the feeling of the whole country in expressing my own sense of loss."

Rev. Dr. William Perry Eveland's sudden death at Mt. Holly Springs on Monday was a great shock to his many friends and acquaintances in this place. For four years Dr. Eveland has been Missionary Bishop of the Methodist Church in the Philippines. His death was accidental. He had gone fishing with a steel rod and when found his body gave evidence of death from electricity. Overhead was a poorly insulated wire was his steel rod must have touched. One finger of the hand holding the rod was burnt. It is said that fully 11,000 volts of electricity passed through his body. He was not found until 20 hours after the accident. Dr. Eveland was born in Harrisburg February 12, 1864. He prepared for college at Pennington Seminary and was graduated from Dickinson College with the class of 1892. He became a member of the Central Pennsylvania Conference in 1891. From 1890 to 1898 he was Headmaster of the Tome Institute at Port Deposit, Maryland. From 1898 to 1900 he was pastor of Duke Street Church, York, and also served pastorates at Shippensburg, Chambersburg and Bloomsburg. On October 12, 1893, he was married to Miss Rosalie C. He was somewhat stunned by the shell but soon recovered his nerve and went again into the fight with renewed strength and courage and came through the bloody conflict without another wound. On his return from the war he went to Carlisle where he engaged in the shoe-making business. Mr. Scheuerman was about 80 years of age and is survived by his wife and one brother.

This adventurer crossed our State's biggest river in 1703. He was not, however, a permanent settler. John Crist, or Grist, or Grist—the spellings vary—had the honor to build the first permanent home in York County. It lacks three years of being two centuries since he did it. His pioneer hut stood on the site of the Pennsylvania Railroad station at Wrightsville.

John Hendricks, ancestor of Thos. A. Hendricks, once Vice-President of the United States, was the first man to receive proprietary permission to settle in what is now York county. Among his contemporaries was John Adam Forney, a fighting German and the ancestor of those later day fighting Forney—Colonel John W., the famous Philadelphia editor, and General James, his son and our fellow townsmen.

Another of these first German settlers was Andrew Schriber, ancestor of Admiral Winfield Scott Schley. The volume can be had for one dollar from Dr. A. R. Wentz, Gettysburg, Pa.

She is a niece of Mrs. W. F. Shandefelt of McSherrystown, and in company with her sister, Mrs. R. E. McLead, of Silverton, visited in this section several years ago. The following is an account of the wedding taken from the "Silverton Standard".

Last Wednesday morning at the hour of 5 o'clock at the home of her parents, Miss Burne Koehler, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Koehler, became the happy bride of our present postmaster, W. N. Haas, when Rev. Fr. Barry pronounced the words that made them husband and wife.

Dr. Wentz's New Book.

Prof. Abdel Ross Wentz, Ph.D., of this place is the author of a volume just issued by the Pennsylvania-German Society entitled "The Beginnings of the German Element in York County, Pennsylvania." Prof. Wentz has been professor of History in Gettysburg College for a number of years and was elected in May to the new chair of Historical Theology in the Seminary here. The book of Prof. Wentz is "gratefully inscribed to the memory of Philip H. Glatfelter." Some idea of the scope of the work can be had from the chapter headings.

The First White Men in the County: The First Settlers: The First Settlement: When the Germans Came and Why: Outstanding Characteristics: The Limestone Soil: Their Place in Pennsylvania History; and Their Place in General American History. The story told is so intimately connected with the beginnings in old Adams, that every child of Adams interested in the county and its history could most profitably read and place a copy of this work in his or her library.

"Girard" in his column in the "Philadelphia Ledger" of last week, told of this work in the following way:

Do you know what was the largest harvest ever reaped from an advertisement?

It was the settlement in Pennsylvania of 100,000 German colonists.

We know that at Germantown, this city, was made the first German settlement in America. We also know that in fifty years double that many thousand Germans came to William Penn's colony.

Furthermore, history tells us that wars and religious persecutions in Germany caused this then unparalleled exodus of men and women.

But what brought them to Pennsylvania and so made of this the German Commonwealth? An advertisement written by William Penn himself, and distributed among the Germans along the Rhine, who had been stricken by the Thirty Years' War.

In his highly readable new volume, "Beginnings of the German Element in York County, Pennsylvania," Dr. Abdel Ross Wentz of Gettysburg lays very heavy emphasis upon this Penn advertising campaign.

Penn had visited Germany to preach the doctrine of the Friends. After coming to the shores of the Delaware and planting his "good green town" he wrote a couple of pamphlets about the merits of the Pennsylvania colony that would make our best ad writers of to-day sit up and gasp.

These come-to-us documents were then widely distributed in Germany. Penn needed settlers, and the Germans needed a place whereon to settle. Hence they came to Philadelphia in shiploads.

Of this very astonishing work of Penn, Doctor Wentz says:

Notwithstanding the appearance for rain last Saturday evening the festival held by the Arendtsville Fire Company drew a fair crowd and the gross receipts were $147.55.

Last Monday when Miss Bertha Wildasin heard a disturbance in the chicken yard and went to investigate she found a copperhead snake in a coop among a brood of young guineas. The snake had swallowed one and had killed another when she killed the reptile.

Several days ago we noticed in the paper that a farmer in the lower end of the county had a brood sow that gave birth to a litter of 16 pigs and they were all living and doing well. When Jacob F. Lower, now deceased, resided in Arendtsville, he had a brood sow that gave birth to 66 pigs in two years. She had three litters of 14 pigs each the first year, and two the second year, one of 19 and the other 5. She only raised seven out of the litter of 19.

Preparedness &amp; Fundamental Planning

On carefully pursued development studies are determined complete fundamental telephone plans for the future. Estimations are based on precise computations and analyses; and, so, there exists to-day a "picture" of the fifteen years hence—the population, the distribution of that population, the building development and the property values in the cities of the country. So, too, the telephone cable plant of the future is plotted out, the switchboard sizes and locations anticipated.

These development studies, checked against each year's results, permit thorough preparation for the morrow, always.

The past twenty months have supremely tested the readiness of the Bell System. The traffic has increased as never before. That this could not be foreseen is obvious; yet in preventing the over-taxing of facilities nothing has contributed more than this policy of being ahead of the requirements of the hour. 9. Qualifications of Officers. The Chairman, who shall have charge of all campaigns, must be a member of the County Committee, but the Secretary and Treasurer need not be members.

Accidents Under New Law.

During the first six months of 1916, almost as many fatal accidents occurred in Pennsylvania industries and were reported to the Bureau of Statistics and Information of the Department of Labor and Industry as were reported during the entire twelve months of the preceding year, according to a statement made by Commissioner John Price Jackson.

Eleven hundred and thirty-six workers were killed during the first six months of this year while the total death list for the twelve months of 1915 was 1,203. The total of all accidents, fatal and non-fatal, is 1,211-180 for the first six months of this year as against 61,500 total accidents reported during 1915. Almost seven workers were killed as a daily average during the first six months of this year. The monthly average was 180, while the monthly average of injuries, fatal and non-fatal, was 20,197.

Commissioner Jackson attributes the increase in the number of accidents, reported this year, partly to the operation of the Workmen's Compensation Act bringing in full reports, partly to the greater number of men employed this year and also to the high speed at which work has been conducted with many "green workers."

Commenting on the large casualty list, Commissioner Jackson said: "Two factors can reduce the accident toll fifty to seventy-five per cent. Those factors are carefulness and adequate safeguards. Every employee should exercise the greatest care. Every dangerous machine should be properly safeguarded and every safeguard, installed on a machine, should always be kept in place."

U. S. to Buy Danish West Indies.

Negotiations between the United States and Denmark looking to the purchase of the Danish West Indies, are practically completed and both Governments are now awaiting an opportune moment for obtaining legislative action to a treaty embodying the deal. It is understood that the price which this Government proposes to pay is approximately $25,000,000.

The object of obtaining the three islands is primarily the establishment of a coaling and cable station at St. Thomas. Incidentally American capital and American enterprise will be used to build up the islands, which have fallen into dire financial straits and become a burden to Denmark.

The strategic importance of the islands for the United States is the elimination of the possibility of some European power taking them off Denmark's hands and thereby having access to a naval base in close proximity to the Panama Canal. The interest of Germany, or German speaking companies, to be exact, in this prospective purchase has interfered with previous efforts made by the United States to acquire possession of them.

This Government has long considered the wisdom of acquiring the Danish West Indies because of the excellent harbor facilities and the added fact that they lie along important trade routes to South America. Grant had the proposal up for consideration during his administration, after which it was dropped and remained dormant until former Secretary of State Knox resurrected it at the instigation of informal inquiries from Denmark.

The present administration began sounding out the Danish Government with reference to the plan nearly a year ago, and negotiations proceeded smoothly until the Danish Legislature went up in arms against the plan early this year.

In diplomatic circles it has been hinted that German influence was behind the opposition in Denmark, but whatever the reason, this opposition was sufficient to cause the project to be dropped temporarily by both Governments.

Now conditions appear to have changed and word has reached the State Department that the people of Denmark are inclined to look more favorably on the plan. It is said that Germany's opposition has disappeared.

Conditions have become very bad there, and there is no longer any market for the native products, and the islands are no longer a source of revenue. Denmark is therefore confronted with the alternative of extending financial aid and going to considerable expense toward improving conditions or accepting the offer of the United States to take the islands off her hands.

The present Administration here, although opposing in principle the acquisition of foreign territory, recognizes the practical advantage to be derived from the proposal. The Panama Canal has greatly enhanced the strategic advantages which the United States would derive from a naval base or coaling station at St. Thomas, and has emphasized the importance of preventing any European Power from acquiring it.

A GERMAN ARMY CORPS.

What It Means to Move and Feed and Form in Fighting

DEMOCRACY' ACHIEVEMENTS

A STATEMENT ISSUED BY A DEMOCRATIC CONGRESSMAN.

A Statement Every Democrat Can Cherish and Point to in Support of Woodrow Wilson.

No matter what the critics of the Democratic Party may charge, no administration in 50 years has enacted as many constructive measures as has the present administration. It has proven its ability and willingness to legislate for the masses.

Tariff.

"We reduced the tariff upon necessities, increased it upon luxuries, and provided for one hundred millions of revenue by a tax upon incomes."

Banking and Currency Reform.

The Federal reserve act supplanted the inelastic national banking act, which was created to meet a great emergency in time of war and was influential and powerful enough to go unopposed by any regulatory legislation for 50 years.

Under the provisions of this financial monstrosity the volume of currency could only be expanded as the Government incurred additional liabilities, and the national bank currency was predicated upon liabilities of the Government rather than upon assets.

A panic could be created over night. Clearing-house certificates were being frequently resorted to in the frantic efforts of honest bankers and respectable business to avoid bankruptcy and commercial stagnation.

In the place of this financial freak the Democratic Party has given to the country a banking system that is panicless, a system by which any man with collateral and character can finance his capital demands. Crops can be moved at fair prices and the supply of currency necessary to meet unusual conditions is expanded and contracted automatically.

Clayton Act.

The Clayton Antitrust Act put real teeth into the Sherman law, affording a place of refuge for the small business enterprise that sought an opportunity to employ its capital. In other words, it threw the cloak of protection around competition and freed it from the effects of unlawful combinations that sought its destruction.

Agriculture.

The most liberal appropriations ever made in the history of the country have been made by this administration for the encouragement of the farmers.

1. Agricultural extension act: In practical effect this bill undertakes to provide such machinery as will bring to the attention of the farmer, the farmer's wife and children, in the most striking manner such demonstrated truths and practices of successful agriculture which, lived up to, make rural life desirable and profitable.

2. Federal warehouses: This bill, when in full operation, will be of incalculable benefit. The Federal Reserve Board has ruled that farm notes secured by proper warehouse receipts are rediscountable. The essential purpose of this bill is to provide machinery by which imperishable farm products may be brought into the most intimate contact with the commercial and banking world. The warehouse receipts as to weight and grade being of unquestionable integrity makes it prime collateral at any Federal reserve bank.

3. Bureau of Markets: The purpose of this bill being to direct the truck and fruit grower and farmer in scientific shipping and crating, and to give information and direction as to the best markets at a given time, thus saving millions to the grower in avoiding a glutted market.

4. Nitrate plant: The most expensive of all necessary ingredients entering into plant food is nitrates. The Army bill carries a provision for the establishment of a Government-owned nitrate plant. Necessarily a large surplus will be available for agricultural purposes, and this bill provides that the surplus shall be sold direct from the Government to the farmer. This will be of great value to the farmers of our section, particularly.

5. Good roads: The Democratic Congress has passed a bill appropriating $75,000,000 to be expended in five years, prorated among the States.

6. Rural credits: The bill as passed is a long step in the right direction, and creates for the first time in our history a system of land-mortgage banks solely for the farmer. Its defects will be corrected; its benefits will be manifold.

7. Parcel post: This beneficent legislation is in its swaddling clothes, so far as its effectiveness has been tested. Good roads and rural delivery extension will bring about its maximum usefulness to the farmer.

Labor.

"We have given to labor a seat in the cabinet and a department of Government for the uplift and betterment of the American wage earner. We have enacted into law much to bring about a more cordial relation between employer and employee. We have provided for a method of conciliation and arbitration in trade disputes. In other words, we have given the workingman a voice in the councils of the Nation."

Merchant Marine.

"The European war has brought the American people face to face with our helpless and dependent condition with regard to ships in which to carry our commerce. The shipping bill recently passed by the House is the first step in rehabilitation of the American merchant marine and the re-establishment of the Stars and Stripes upon the seas. We must and will free the American manufacturer, merchant, and farmer from the uncertainties involved in dependency upon foreign nations for bottoms in which to ship our commerce to the markets of the world."

The Army and Navy.

"While we have materially increased the standing army, we have taken the one step necessary to insure an adequate defense for our country by trained and equipped soldiers—encouragement to the National Guard and stimulation to the citizen to become a soldier. Under the Army bill just enacted we will have in 10 years 750,000 trained citizen soldiers, representing the highest and most patriotic type of American citizenry."

"The Navy is our first line of defense. The Democratic Party inherited from the Republicans a top-heavy, unbalanced, ineffective, and inefficient Navy. When the present building program is completed we will have, irrespective of whether Germany and England meet again in battle, the second largest navy in the world and the best and most powerful navy, ship for ship, that ever plowed its way through the seas."

"These are the chief achievements of the Democratic administration."

Who can doubt that the American people in November next will give very enthusiastic and glad endorsement to a record like this?

Successful Marketing.

The Department of Agriculture at Harrisburg is doing a work for the farmers and for the people in general throughout the State that is greatly appreciated. This appreciation will grow from day to day as the people become better acquainted with its work and realize the benefits that are daily coming to them with but little or no expense.

The work of the Farm Advisers is beginning to bring forth fruit, some of it one hundred fold. None of the work, however, seemingly gets quite so close to the hearts and pocketbooks of the people as that of marketing farm products. All are interested in this proposition, no matter where they live or what their occupation.

This important work has been assigned to E. B. Dorsett of Mansfield, Pennsylvania. He is ably assisted in this work by the other Advisers. In fact the members of the board are demonstrating what true co-operation is and means, by the splendid team work which they are doing. They are teaching the farmer that it is a waste of time, money and energy to produce a crop and then not be able to successfully market it.

After the crop is produced the farmer must know how, when and where to sell. It is a well known fact, that no matter how fertile the soil, how well the land is tilled, how abundant the harvest, it is of but little avail to the farmer if he is unable to market the crops at a profit. Successful marketing is the key to the arch with every farmer.

To be able to market successfully requires an unusual combination of qualities as well as market facilities not accorded to many. The farmer needs to be not only a good tiller of the soil, but he needs to be a good salesman as well.

Not all farmers are good salesmen, not any more than all salesmen are good farmers.

Recognizing this fact the Department of Agriculture is making plans that will be beneficial to all parties interested. Farmers are now being taught the art of marketing as well as that of increased productions. Competent men are given instructions as to grading, sorting and packing, as well as market needs and cautions. An effort is being made to induce farmers to standardize their products.

Never drink out of an unknown surface stream. When traveling see that pure water is carried along as well as food, otherwise the harvest of sickness and death will follow and defeat the object of summer vacations—Little Talks on Health and Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M.D., D.Sc., Commissioner of Health.

Prevention of Infantile Paralysis.

To control the present epidemic of infantile paralysis, according to a statement issued by the United States Public Health Service to-day, the chain of infection between persons harboring germs of the disease and the well members of the community should be broken. Infantile paralysis is probably caused by a very minute organism found in the nasal, mouth and bowel discharges of those who have the disease or who are carriers of the germ without themselves suffering from the ailment. All of the steps in the steps in the spread of the infection are not known but if this germ can be prevented from passing from the infected to the well person, the disease will cease.

Poliomyelitis is probably spread directly or indirectly, through the medium of infective secretions. Account must therefore be taken by communities of every means by which such secretions are disseminated. Promiscuous expectoration should be controlled. The common drinking cup affords a method for the interchange of material of this nature and should therefore be abolished.

A GOOD FRIEND.

A good friend stands by you when in need. Gettysburg people tell how Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test. Mr. Tawney endorsed Doan's over six years ago and again confirms the story. Could you ask for more convincing testimony?

John J. Tawney, stone mason, 234 Baltimore St., Gettysburg, says: "My back ached constantly and often in the morning. I was so stiff and lame that I was hardly able to get up out of bed. I suffered off and on from rheumatic pains. The kidney action was too frequent and caused me trouble. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box from the People's Drug Store. I was much surprised at the quick relief I got. I am not bothered with rheumatic pains the way I used to be and I am much better all around."

(Statement given January 3, 1910.)

KEEPES DOANS ON HAND.

On February 14, 1916, Mr. Tawney said:

"I always keep Doan's Kidney Pills on hand to use in case of necessity. This medicine gave me excellent results and I continue to recommend them."

measures are in a sense general, and applicable to many epidemic diseases, their importance should not be overlooked."

Individual preventive measures may be thus summarized:

Summon a physician at once and immediately notify the health officer of the presence of the disease. If the disease is present in the community, medical aid should be sought whenever a child is sick no matter how light the illness; many cases of infantile paralysis begin with a slight indisposition.

Should the illness prove to be infantile paralysis isolate the patient, place a competent person in charge, and reduce all communication with the sick room to a minimum. Hospital care is preferable, not only for the child but in order to better safeguard against the spread of the disease. The sick room should be well ventilated and screened.

Nasal and mouth secretions should be received in cloths, placed in a paper bag, and burned. The clothing of the child, the bed, linen, and the excretions should be disinfected in the same manner as for typhoid fever, that is by boiling, the long continued application of 5 per cent carbolic, or other well recognized disinfectant. The same is true for dishes and drinking vessels.

Nurses should exercise the same precautions as regards cleanliness of hands in caring for infantile paralysis patients as for those afflicted with other infectious diseases.

A child may convey the disease to others even after a lapse of several weeks. For this reason quarantining should be maintained for a considerable period, usually from six to eight weeks, and the above precautions should be adhered to during this time. Disinfection of the room following recovery is advisable.—U. S. Public Health Service.

Infected Piece of Nature.

Our streams once undefiled by man ran from the mountains to the sea in all of Nature's purity. They ran through our valleys and meadows in all their pristine beauty and offered to all animate nature that which would innocently quench the thirst of man and beast and help them live.

Today it is not so. Man relentlessly, regardless of his brother downstream, now throws his waste and that of domestic animals into the waters flowing nearest his home.

In that with which Nature has endowed much of our territory more richly than many other countries, we now find lurking poison has been hidden, in some cases only to be seen by the aid of the microscope.

Now is the season when we travel through the country to be happy and lay up energy and strength for the toil of the coming winter. Alas! The want of intelligence and care makes us deaf to the teaching of preventive medicine and we quench our thirst at the stream we run across regardless of its purity, and often the sparkling tumbler of water is only to be compared with the draught of the deadly hemlock. The parched lips have been moistened and the thirst satisfied but the day of judgment too often comes bringing the development of typhoid fever which in years past we could only compare with some of the plagues that ravaged our ancient cities.

Those of us who collect, tabulate, and have ever before us the statistics that show the suffering and sorrow that still continue from typhoid fever, beg you to awaken to that which causes so much distress. By proper care it can be avoided.

Never drink out of an unknown surface stream. When traveling see that pure water is carried along as well as food, otherwise the harvest of sickness and death will follow and defeat the object of summer vacations—Little Talks on Health and Hygiene by Samuel G. Dixon, M.D., D.Sc., Commissioner of Health.

Tea Chewers of Siam.

"Chewing tea comes from Siam," said a traveler. "They call it mieng. It is in a plug like chewing tobacco, and it has a villainous smell. This smell is due to the fermentation it has undergone. The tea that the Siamese employ for chewing purposes is a very coarse, rank plant. It is gathered like ordinary tea, but the leaves after being compressed into plugs are buried for fifteen days. They ferment during burial. On their resurrection they are very, very fragrant indeed. The Siamese boatmen chew tea. The rickshaw men chew it. The literateurs chew it. They say it makes them work better. This is probably the truth, for I chewed a plug myself in Anam, and it exhilarated me strangely. But the aftermath was bad—a headache, smarting eyes and nervous depression."

A GOOD FRIEND.

A good friend stands by you when in need. Gettysburg people tell how Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test. Mr. Tawney endorsed Doan's over six years ago and again confirms the story. Could you ask for more convincing testimony?

John J. Tawney, stone mason, 234 Baltimore St., Gettysburg, says: "My back ached constantly and often in the morning. I was so stiff and lame that I was hardly able to get up out of bed. I suffered off and on from rheumatic pains. The kidney action was too frequent and caused me trouble. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills and got a box from the People's Drug Store. I was much surprised at the quick relief I got. I am not bothered with rheumatic pains the way I used to be and I am much better all around."

(Statement given January 3, 1910.)

KEEPES DOANS ON HAND.

On February 14, 1916, Mr. Tawney said:

"I always keep Doan's Kidney Pills on hand to use in case of necessity. This medicine gave me excellent results and I continue to recommend them."

MAKING OLD PAVEMENTS GOOD AS NEW A SIMPLE OPERATION, EXPERTS SAY

Methods of Resurfacing That Have Proved Successful in Many Cities.

Cost is Much Less Than Entirely New Pavements.

How this city can make over its old, unsightly, worn-out brick pavements has been told in previous articles.

Street surfaces of this description can be transformed into good pavements by placing a sheet asphalt or asphaltic concrete top on the old brick. Concrete pavements which by cracking or disintegration of the surface have reached an unsatisfactory condition can be resurfaced in the same way.

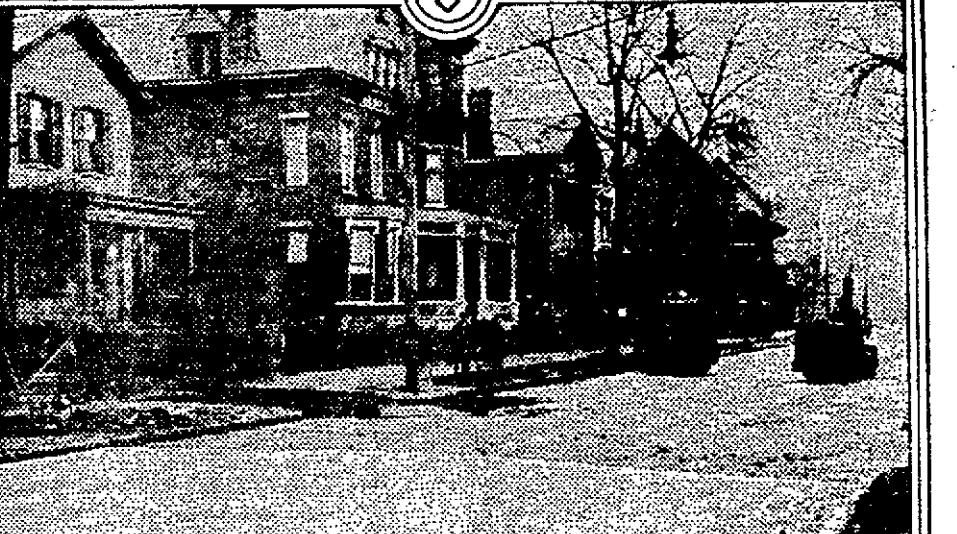

Resurfacing of this description when properly done provides a new pavement for the price of the asphaltic top. As has been pointed out, it is the worst kind of waste to throw away your investment in old brick, concrete or even macadam highways when these can be used as foundations for new pavements which at very moderate cost can be made a big improvement over the old ones.

If a surface heater is available, it will pay to warm up the street before the paint coat is applied. Dust or dampness prevents proper adhesion of the paint coat to the brick or concrete.

Fill all depressions with the concrete or binder; then clean and apply the paint coat.

As soon as the lighter parts of the paint coat have evaporated, and before it has had a chance to accumulate dust and dirt, the surface mixture should be placed and rolled. Either sheet asphalt or asphaltic concrete, each of 2 inches in thickness, may form the new wearing surface.

In cases where the curb is very low and for this reason it is undesirable to make the wearing surface 2 inches thick at the curb, it may be reduced

WHERE PROGRESSIVES STAND.

The New York Progressives refused last week to indorse the candidacy of Charles E. Hughes. The New Jersey Progressives have taken the same view. This is the attitude in California, Washington and other States. The explanation of the situation has been already stated as follows:

For Progressives to go back to the Republican party now would be self-stratification, and would be an admission that they had never been sincere in their progressive professions, according to Edgar C. Snyder, Chairman of the Progressive party in the State of Washington in 1912. Mr. Snyder is supporting Mr. Wilson because he, the President, "has given us a progressive leadership and has done much during the last three years to make effective the essential demands of the Progressive party platform."

Mr. Snyder insists that if Mr. Roosevelt was sincere four years ago when he said that the bosses and the special interests had brought the Republican party to a shameful end, then it cannot be expected that the Progressives can go back now without a clear showing that the old party has been purified and has remained within it "that fire of lofty endeavor."

The control of invisible government over the machine of the Republican party has never been relaxed, but has been strengthened and confirmed," declared Mr. Snyder.

"Wherever the Republican party has been dominant during the last four years its record of public acts has been one of retrogression and not of progress. No better example of this need be sought than the showing of our own Republican majority in the last legislature of this State.

The flagrantly reactionary legislation then passed would be throttling our liberty as individual voters and as home rule powers as self-respecting and governing communities, if we had not fortunately possessed the power of compelling these vicious measures to be submitted to a vote of the people.

The Progressive voters are first of all independent voters. That is why they left the old party and that is why no man and no newspaper organ and no machine can now deliver their vote. They think for themselves and they will deliver their own vote. That is why I feel confident that the bulk of the Progressive vote will in reality be cast for Woodrow Wilson."

Valley Road.

The "Buchanan Valley Good Roads Association" was organized at a meeting in St. Ignatius' Hall last Saturday and following officers were chosen: Rev. Sullivan, President; John Hall, Vice President; James C. Cole, Secretary; and Albert Irvin, Treasurer. The purpose of the organization is the very laudable one of a good road through the Valley from the Lincoln Highway at Newman's to the Shippensburg road at Cole's homestead.

Rev. Fr. Sullivan in his remarks called attention to the importance of the Valley as an agricultural section with an extensive business in lumbering and fruit growing. He pictured conditions ideal in every respect, except in facilities for communication with the outside in general, and market centers in particular. "Nowhere in Pennsylvania," said Father Sullivan, "can worse roads be found than in our beautiful valley."

Hon. C. A. Carothers of the Agricultural Department of Pennsylvania, according to the "Star and Sentinel," gave assurances of the hearty co-operation of his department. This is so funny one is forced to wonder what kind of a political gold brick was being handed the good people of the Valley, for what would the assurances of an agricultural department amount to when the Highway Department must spend the money. Mr. Carothers may give an explanation for the "Star" says he was accompanied by Republican candidate for Congress, Samuel K. McCall, S. S. Lewis, private secretary of Congressman L. Wm. Beale, and chief political stirrer of the old guard, Wm. R.

WOODROW WILSON.

Wilson and the Farmers.

America is, first and foremost, a corn and cotton country. Its chief products are its farm products. It stands at the foremost among the self-sufficient nations who feed themselves and contribute largely to the sustenance of other nations. It follows as a matter of course that in America the best possible basis of credit should be the ownership in fee of a paid for and productive part of the planet on which we all walk about. Our farms are the main source of our wealth; but from the outstart of our colonial existence down to the present day there has been no proper or adequate provision for the establishment of such a system of rural credits as would enable the farmers of the country to borrow money needed for necessary improving outlay at fair rates of interest. We have so framed our laws and so arranged our tax rates and financial policies as to build up our trading and manufacturing industries while leaving the farmer to shift for himself.

At last we have reached a turning point in our economic development. It is beginning to be recognized that fair play is the soundest governmental policy. To help the farmer to help himself is the very best way to put cheaper bread and meat within reach of all. For a hundred years the farmers have borne, without collective aggressive political effort to right their wrongs, the burden of unfair taxation. They are now on the eve of better days. The farmer is soon to be put in a position to fight his way to his proper position at the front of our national affairs without the hindrance of legislative pull-backs.

The repeal of unfair taxes, the firm establishment of the national credit upon a sound Federal banking system, and the initiation of a system of rural credits that will eventually put the farmers of the country in a position to control their own lending and borrowing to their own best advantage, are the great domestic achievements of the Wilson Administration. What other administrations have promised the Wilson Administration has performed.

The farmers of the United States will make a great mistake if they do not go to the polls in November and keep Woodrow Wilson for another four years in the White House. They have the power if they choose to exert it. They have the incentive to push them forward. No other President of the United States has ever done so much for the farmers as a class. One good turn deserves another. Why should not the farmers stand fast by the man who so stanchly stood forth for them?

Flemming and Robert C. Miller, editor of the "Star."

If the road is to be built the Valley people need the assurances of Second Deputy State Highway Commissioner Biles, without whose OK money of the State is not spent on roads and also of Chief Engineer W. D. Uhler. Without the assurances of these officials whose assurances count, the assurance of the Agricultural Department in political company looks like a gold brick.

A good road through the Valley opening up a highway of transcendent beauty and a rich fruit section is most desirable. The road would be six miles long and to build at the usual cost of state roads, of about $15,000 a mile, would cost a total of $90,000. As road is not a state highway the burden of building could not be assumed by the State. If built as a state aid road, the county would have to pay one-fourth and the township one-fourth.

The suggestion comes that the association ask that the road be built jointly with Federal and State money. President Wilson has within a few days approved the Federal road bill, from which Pennsylvania will receive at an early date a quarter of a million dollars and this can be spent upon rural mail routes, but the State must spend as much as Uncle Sam in any undertaking. Why not go after enough of the U. S. appropriation with State helping to build the Valley road?

Loses Job.

J. Louis Sowers, the Gettysburg school teacher who was transferred from a clerkship in the Department of Labor and Industry last spring, and given a place in the Workmen's Compensation Bureau, has been informed that after July 31 his services will no longer be needed, and that his vacation, which he is at present enjoying, is the prelude to his being divorced from the State payroll.

Mr. Sowers is the State employee who last spring announced that he had been sent into Adams county to get signatures to a petition for a Brumbaugh delegate to the national convention, and after failing to get the signatures, he was notified of his transmittal to another department.

At the time his conscience would not permit him to do outside work while he was in the employ of the State, and when he got his warrant for his monthly salary, he returned one day's pay on the ground that he was not working for the State on that day, but securing signatures for candidates. At the time the affair created considerable comment, as Mr. Sowers was the only State attache who had ever refused to take his entire month's salary for reasons such as he gave.

In the letter informing him that his services are no longer needed, it is stated that there are no more funds available for the work he was doing, and he was not fitted for the position anyway.—Harrisburg Star-Independent.

SLICING A THOUSAND LOAVES A DAY

Over a thousand loaves of bread a day are required to serve the patients at the State's great Sanatorium at Mont Alto. There are 1,150 patients continually under treatment at this Institution and 300 employees.

Rest, fresh air, and good food are the three primary requisites in the treatment which Commissioner of Health, Samuel G. Dixon, has ordained. The stimulating mountain air and the life in the open is sufficient in itself to insure exceptional appetites, and so the kitchen is one of the features of the Sanatorium. The thousand loaves of bread are part of the daily diet.

Stop for a moment and consider how much work it would be to cut that much bread. Without the aid of machinery it would be a big task, but with the automatic bread cutter shown in the picture hundreds of loaves are speedily cut into appetizing slices of unvarying thickness.

Too Much.

In a certain city the street car system is operated on the policy that the passenger is always right, and it seems to work to the advantage of the company. A man, woman and a boy plainly of fair age boarded a pay-as-you-enter car. Father handed the conductor a dime and started for a seat.

"How about the child?" asked the conductor politely.

Father reached in his pocket for another fare and as he offered it to the conductor remarked:

"I never have paid for him."

"How old is he?" asked the conductor.

"Not quite five."

"I beg your pardon," replied the conductor. "I thought he was past six. If you say he is not five I cannot accept a fare for him."

Father returned the money to his pocket and sat down, with a flushed face, realizing the polite conductor had given him the worst of it.

"Well," remarked father to mother, "I guess we will pay for William after this."—Indianapolis News.

Didn't Mean It That Way.

Willie—I say, ma, if dad was to die will he go to heaven? Ma—Hush Willie! Who's been putting such ridiculous thoughts into your head?—London Opinion.

When Tolstoy Tried to Fly.

From earliest childhood Tolstoy was remarkably observant of the things that were going on in the world around him. Thus, while still in his teens, we find him taking an interest in the art of flying that was too practical to suit his devoted mother. With characteristic thoroughness he invented a design of his own and with equally characteristic courage proceeded to put it to an immediate test from a second story window. But the boy who was afterward to find food for thought for the whole civilized world was not destined to make his mark as an infant aeronaut. He fell instantly to the ground, and, though by great good fortune no bones were actually broken, the concussion was so great that young Tolstoy afterward slept for sixteen hours on end.

A Curious Relic.

A curious relic of Louis XVII. is the "game of dominos" made of pieces of the Bastille which were given to the dauphin before he and his parents left Versailles forever. It is said that when the box containing it was brought in the queen exclaimed to her bedchamber woman, Mme. Campan: "What a sinister plaything to give a child!" The sinister plaything is, with other revolutionary objects, preserved in Paris.

Stamp Collecting.

In 1847 the island of Mauritius issued two varieties of stamps—one in red at a penny, the other blue at twopence. Of these only some twenty or so are known to be in existence, and within recent years two pairs of red and blue sold respectively for £600 and £1,921. Stamp collecting is necessarily a modern hobby, and it would be difficult now to trace it to its source. Some say that the hobby was of English origin and spread to the continent; others declare that it came to us from Belgium. The first note on the subject in Notes and Queries appeared in June, 1869, when Mr. Cresswell, a Tunbridge schoolmaster, communicating—as something new—the fact that a boy in his form had collected between 300 and 400 different specimens. In 1864 a provincial paper referred laughingly to a collector who advertised his collection for sale at £200, adding, "We only wish he may get it"—London Standard.

A Long Lived Eagle.

It has been a tradition from time immemorial that the eagle renews its strength when very old. It mounts aloft until it comes very near the sun when, scorched by the heat, it throws itself into the sea, whence it emerges full of renewed vigor.

Such have supposed that the passage in Psalms ciii, 5, "Thy youth is renewed like the eagle's," alludes to this old fable. But the more probable fact is that it refers to the strength and vigor which characterize the eagle even in old age.

A couple of years ago a large specimen of eagle was shot on the fjord by the city of Nakskov, Denmark. Around its neck was fastened a small chain to which was attached a sealed bottle. On opening the bottle a note was found written in Danish, which translated reads as follows: "Caught and again made free by N. and C. Anderson in the year 1792."

DANCES AND DIES.

The May Fly Lives Only a Day, but Has a Gay Time While He Lives.

Foolish insect! He lives only one day and spends the greater part of it dancing. You've doubtless been a guest at one of their dances, held over a stream on a warm summer's evening. You've seen the insects in swarms, leaping up and down in fancy steps and intricate figures. You've attended the dance of the May flies.

There is a general supposition that all May flies live only for a day. As a matter of fact, they will live several days if the atmosphere isn't too dry. Then again they may survive only through a single night. Even this impending fate cannot stop them from dancing.

This brief lived characteristic, however, applies only to the winged existence of the insect. Before they grow wings they pass through several stages, from the larvae, which live in water, through several molts and transformations. So while it is a May fly only for a short time it exists for a longer time, and perhaps we can pardon it if it dances during the brief period it lives in the air.

The fly has two pairs of wings, one pair much larger than the other, and two or three long, bristle-like tails. Its mouth is small and soft and not made for eating. The May fly has no time to eat. He's too busy dancing.—Philadelphia Times.

SENDING A MAN BY MAIL*It Is Quite Possible Under British Parcel Post Rules.

The parcel post has made its usefulness felt in many ways, unexpected as well as foreseen. But the English parcel post does one surprising thing that has not yet been introduced into our own system.

An Englishman wished to reach a customer living in a remote part of Balham, one of the suburbs of London, and it was very necessary that he find him quickly. Knowing nothing of the district, he called at the general post office at St. Martin's-le-Grand to consult a directory. On explaining his case to a clerk he was amazed to learn that he could be sent to the address by parcel post by paying a fee of threepence a mile.

The gentleman had never heard of such a thing, and it is said that very few persons in England know that it can be done. He was placed in charge of a messenger who was familiar with all parts of the city and was soon on his way. The boy carried a printed slip on which was written a description of the "parcel" in charge under the heading "Article Required to Be Delivered," and before leaving the customer's house both the customer and the gentleman had to put their signatures on the paper.

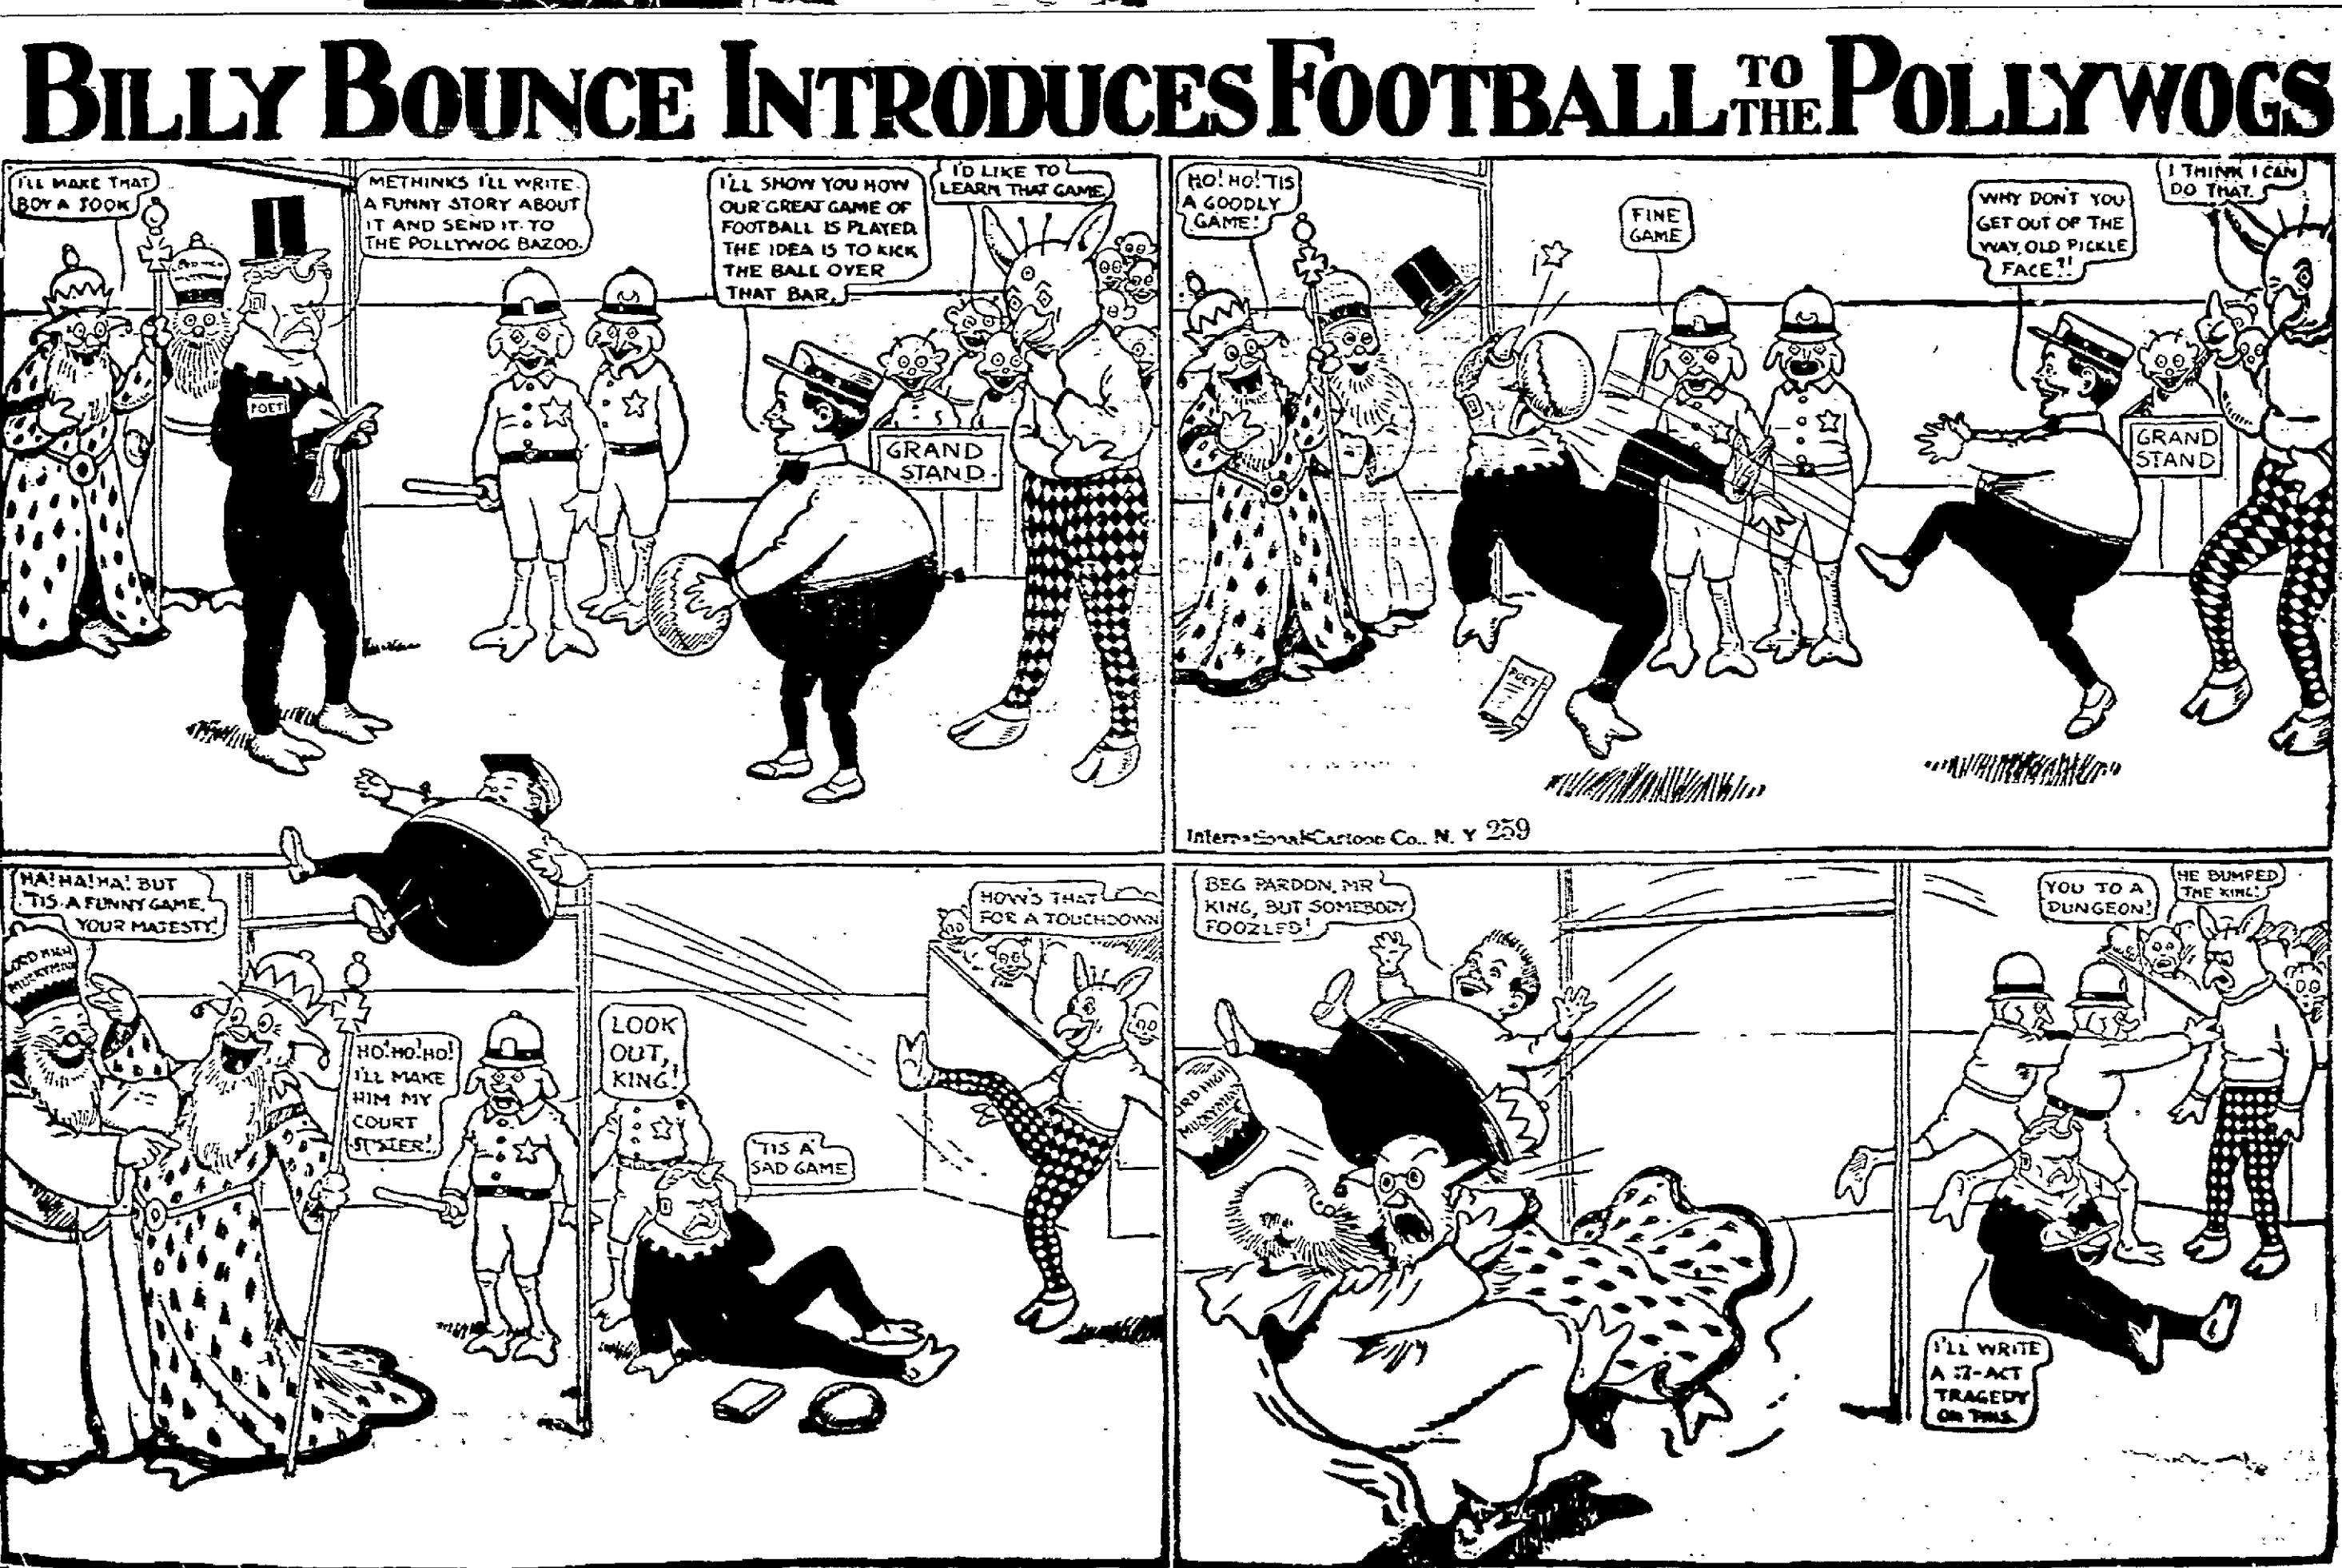

The limit in weight for anything delivered by parcel post in England is generally understood to be eleven pounds, but there is one clause that reads, "A person may be conducted by express messenger to any address on payment of the mileage fee."—Youth's Companion.

THE NORTHEAST PASSAGE.*Only Two Expeditions Succeeded in Getting Through It.

Most attempts of European countries to find a comparatively short passage from the Atlantic to oriental countries were by way of the northwest passage, north of Europe and Asia, and in every instance having met with dire failure, they concentrated attention upon the northwest passage as probably more feasible.

Practically all the arctic expeditions from Sir John Ross to Sir John Franklin were fitted out most of all to find the northwest passage. The passage was found during the search for the lost party of Sir John Franklin, but it was never traversed by a ship till Amundsen took his little boat, the Gjoa, through it in August, 1903.

The attempts to make the northeast passage began with the hardy Dutch sailor Barents in 1595, whose party was the first to spend the dark winter night in the arctic "in most greate cold and extreme miserie." The only achievement of the northeast passage prior to Vilhjalmur's success in 1914-15 was by Baron A. E. Nordenstjold, who sailed from Tromsøe with his Swedish expedition in June, 1878, triumphed over the great obstacle of Cape Cheluskin and was within 120 miles of Bering strait when winter closed upon him. He entered Bering strait in July, 1879, thirteen months from the time he sailed.—Cyrus C. Adams in New York Times.

ANGELA'S HERO

He Turned Out to Be What She Wanted

By CLARISSA MACKIE

his straight black hair and silent tongue.

"Hero, indeed!" he was muttering in his sleep, and Mrs. Blake, hearing him, smiled secretly.

"I wonder why he was telling Angela that the rose garden is haunted," she thought. "He knows she is quite fearless at night and might take to wandering around the garden to run our ghost to earth! Strange, Jim never spoke to me about the ghost; but, of course, I am not looking for adventures."

Angela was thinking about the ghost of the rose garden, and she decided that the very next moonlight night she would watch for it. "Not from the window," she told herself courageously, "but in the garden itself. Very likely it is only Edna's cook getting a breath of fresh air after a hard day's work, or it might be her sweetheart."

It rained the next night and the next, and it was not until the third night that a pale moon shone through the clouds. Nathan appeared at dinner that evening, and Angela showed such a charming embarrassment at meeting him and Nathan blushed so rapidly behind his glasses that Jim Blake came to the conclusion that Angela's plea of waiting for a "hero" to come into her life was only an excuse.

Nathan only remained a few minutes after the meal was concluded. Jim followed him into the porch for a quiet word.

"If you should be skimming around after dark, old man," he warned his brother-in-law, "just keep your eye on Miss Angela. She will be searching the rose garden for a ghost. It's sort of a fad of hers, you know, that and expecting bold lovers to ride up on black horses and elope with her. Just see that no one does it, eh?"

"Um-ab!" said Nathan rather vaguely as he wandered off toward the fields.

"Done, by Jove!" chuckled Jim Blake as he lighted a cigar.

It was verging on midnight when Angela Thornton slipped cautiously down the front stairs and let herself into the garden.

The Blakes prided themselves on their lovely gardens, especially the rose garden, which was inclosed in a high hedge of Cherokee roses.

The rose garden lay on the other side of an expanse of rolling lawns.

Angela, wearing her white frock, with a pale blue shawl wrapped around her slender shoulders, went slowly down the path and stepped on to the springy turf. The moon, drifting in and out of the scudding clouds, made alternate light and shadow on the grass.

It was a pleasant night for ghost hunting.

Presently there came a throbbing sound overhead and a deeper shadow on the lawn, though now the clouds had parted to let the moon shine through quite clearly.

Angela, startled, looked up and saw a great object bearing down upon her out of the night sky, a great black winged thing. No, it was white where the moonlight touched it!

Then it came down, down, reached the ground, rocked over the turf and came to a pause within half a dozen feet of Angela Thornton.

"Why, it's an aeroplane!" she thought and clasped her hands in delighted wonder, for she had never seen one except in the illustrated papers. "The poor man has lost his way."

The aviator had climbed out of his seat and was coming toward Angela. His was a tall, thin, stooping figure dressed in leather garments and wearing close fitting cap and goggles. Over his arm he carried a big leather coat.

"Angela," he said deliberately. "I've always wanted to marry you. You remember I asked you once years ago, and you called me a simpleton and"—

"Nathan," she quavered, for she had penetrated his disguise. "I sent you away because I was the simpleton. I loved you and I wanted to marry you, but you were not romantic enough for me. So I have waited."

"Waited for me?" he put in eagerly.

"Of course!"

He turned and waved a hand at the aeroplane. "Come with me, then, dear, and never dare to say that you have not had an adventure. Slip into this coat. There! The minister at Woburn is waiting for us. Oh, I'm a hero—quite an up to date one, sweetheart. And my motor will take us to Woburn and our wedding in a manner never dreamed of by you."

So he plucked a handful of white roses for a bridal bouquet, and then he lifted Angela into the passenger's seat and strapped her in. Then he took the pilot's place, started the motor of his own inventing and presently they were soaring at a safe height above the treetops.

The moonlight shone on the cross of the steeple of the Woburn church and guided them straight to the minister and future happiness.

The moonlight shone on the Blakes' rose garden and the deserted lawn. And Edna Blake and her husband, thrusting their heads from the windows of their adjoining rooms, stared into each other's surprised faces.

"You saw it?" asked Edna at last.

"Wouldn't have missed it for anything," declared Jim blushing.

"Matchmaker!" she taunted.

"Why didn't you tell Nathan yourself?" asked Jim chuckling.

"He might have suspected me of matchmaking," she confessed. "As it is, they have revived their old love, married and I wonder if an elopement by aeroplane is romantic enough for Angela."

"I guess that excuse of Angela's was made to cover up her tenderness for Nathan," said Jim eagerly.

"Oh, you mean that there would be no romance for Angela unless Nathan figured in it?"

"Yes, and I mean that, no matter in what guise Nathan came, he alone could be Angela's hero!"

O'Connell as an Orator.

Few orators have been so fortunate as Daniel O'Connell in their physical appeal to the senses. Grattan, Curran, Emmet, Shell and Meagher were small men, not the least impressive to the eye. O'Connell was a man of royal aspect. His voice was seductively musical—the most musical, according to Dinsdale, ever heard in the house of commons. It was soft, of great compass, capable of expressing every imaginable emotion. His eyes, light in color and full, flashed or beamed or burned, according to the sentiment expressed. His contemporaries all mentioned the expressibility of his mouth. His gestures were free and bold, not in the least suggestive of eloquence and yet infinitely graceful and apt. There was nothing in his manner indicative of preparation. His manner was easy and without effort. Wendell Phillips, who heard him, says in his lecture: "We used to say of Webster, 'This is a great effort,' of Everett, 'It is a beautiful effort,' but you never used the word 'effort' in speaking of O'Connell. It provoked you that he would not make an effort."

"The Irish Orators," by Claude G. Bowers.

The Evil Eye.

It is probable that the "evil eye," for which many hapless old women were banished to their death on the suspicion of witchcraft in "the good old days," was no more than a common squint, a "cast" in the eye, or "bossing," as it is called in many parts of the country to this day, writes Dr. N. Bishop Harman in the British Journal of Children's Diseases. Not only was the squint thought to be of evil significance, but the defect itself was considered to be the work of evil spirits. In "King Lear" we find the following in the scene on the heath at night:

"This is the foul fiend Flibbertigibbet. He begins at curfew and walks till the first cock, he gives the web and the pin, squints the eye and makes the barelip, mildews the white meat and hurts the poor creature of earth."

Knew His Man.

George Bubb, better known as Bubb Doddington, one of the wits of the eighteenth century, always dined well and always liked to doze after the repast. Falling asleep one day after dinner with Sir Richard Temple and Lord Cobham, the latter reproached Doddington with his drowsiness. Doddington denied having been asleep and to prove he had not offered to repeat all Lord Cobham had been saying. Cobham challenged him to do so. Doddington repeated a story, and Lord Cobham owned he had been telling it. "Well," said Doddington, "and yet I did not hear a word of it, but I went to sleep because I knew that about this time of the day you would tell that story."

Lightning Rods.

There were no lightning rods in ancient times. The first one that the world ever saw was set up by our own illustrious countryman Benjamin Franklin shortly after the year 1752.

He had just had his celebrated experiment with the kite, in which he demonstrated the identity of lightning with electricity, and was therefore prepared for the construction of the rods for which the world had waited so long. It is not generally known that Franklin was as distinguished in science as he was in statesmanship and diplomacy.—Exchange.

A Bright Outlook.

"Do you—er—do you think, Miss Dobleigh, that you will be—er—engaged next Thursday evening?" asked Tompy very bashfully.

"Well, really, Mr. Tompy," replied Ethel. "I don't know, but if you can get up enough between now and then to do your share I think there's a fair prospect that I shall be."

And Tompy did.

Different Kinds.

"I had a tooth extracted yesterday," remarked the fussy man, "and the dentist gave me gas."

"Oh, that's nothing," rejoined the man with the bald spot. "Every time I get shaved the barber gives me a lot of it"—Indianapolis Star.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Hemorrhage.
In treating hemorrhage the first thing is to find its cause and then try to stop it by local means. What these means are must depend on the state the patient is in and the site of the bleeding. If that is easily reached the hemorrhage can be stopped by packing or by pressure or by binding with ligatures. Sometimes the state of the patient is such that it is best to stop the flow by the pressure of the hand or fingers while other steps are taken to relieve the constitutional symptoms of shock and collapse.

Sometimes only an operation can reach the point from which the blood comes. In that case it must be performed as rapidly as possible while the patient receives constitutional treatment.

In many cases only a physician can find the source of a hemorrhage, but intelligent bystanders can do much to relieve the symptoms. Hot water bottles are needed to help in maintaining the bodily heat. Stimulants should be in readiness, and the salt box should be at hand, for saline injections are often given by physicians in dangerous cases of hemorrhage.

Hot weather. Little clothing. Plenty of water inside and out. Dr. Fahrney's Teething Syrup. Babies don't get sick.

Feel languid, weak, run down? Headache? Stomach "off"? A good advertisement.

Thursday afternoon a bolt of lightning struck a large locust tree near the home of Harry Gulden, in the rear of Pine Run school house, Hamilton township. The bolt passed down the trunk of the tree and into the ground with such force that window panes in the side of the house toward the tree, about 45 in number, were knocked from the sash and broken and a number of brick were torn from the chimney.

Traveling Man's Experience.

"In the summer of 1888 I had a very severe attack of cholera morbus. Two physicians worked over me from four a. m. to 6 p. m. without giving me any relief and then told me they did not expect me to live; that I had best telegraph for my family. Instead of doing so, I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, and take no substitute. I took a double dose according to the directions and went to sleep after the second dose. At five o'clock the next morning I was called by my order and took a train for my next stopping point, a well man but feeling rather shaky from the severity of the attack," writes H. W. Ireland, Louisville, Ky. Obtainable everywhere.
